

The "Proof" of God.

Allan Hytowitz

The "proof" of God can be done as a very simple experiment.

The "Proof" of anything is determined by how we define it. We define God as a Conceptual Entity that is Universal, Constant, Omniscient, and Eternal. Any entity that does not conform to these standards is not God or even "a god."

To do the experiment, hold a pen or similar item one foot above a table or desk, and then let it go.

(Asking someone in advance what they think will happen when you let go of the pen will reinforce their understanding of the "hypothesis-experiment-evaluation" process of science.)

When you let go of the pen it should fall to the table surface. And it should fall at the rate of 32 feet per second squared due to the Gravitational Constant. And it should fall at that rate even if you repeat the experiment a million (or a billion) times.

The Gravitational Constant will produce the same result falling at 32 feet per second whether that one foot distance is at a desk in front of you or a similar desk 13.2 Billion light years away (the diameter of our known universe). It has also remained the consistent Gravitational Constant over the past 13.7 billion years. The extrapolation (Belief) in that Gravitational Constant we call Faith.

Faith in the consistency and universality of the secular "Laws of Physics" is an essential ingredient of Science. The "Laws of Physics" are the Universal, Constant, Omniscient, and Eternal concepts that define God. Faith is NOT our belief IN miracles but in the ABSENCE of miracles. Any religion whose existence is based upon a "miracle" that violates the "Laws of Physics" is a religion based upon a lie, and NOT a reflection of God. What we typically define as miracles is because someone either misinterpreted, misunderstood, misrepresented (lied) about their observation of physical events.

Miracles do exist. What likely ARE miracles are NOT events that violate the laws of physics but events that violate the laws of probability. Not only DOES God "play dice with the universe, (Einstein was wrong), God plays with loaded dice as its method for how events occur. The process of evolution is our understating of how God brings about changes in our world and a further proof of the existence of God.

Any process that seemingly violates those Laws of Physics (what we traditionally call a "miracle") is likely because we were misinformed (our information was incorrect or was measured wrongly), we misunderstood (our information was misinterpreted), or the information was misrepresented (somebody lied). The "Proof of God" is NOT in deviations or aberrations of Physical Laws, but in the Universality and Consistency of those Physical Laws. By definition the "Proof of God" is the Absence of Miracles. (In cynical terms, belief in physical inconsistencies is because we are Dumb, Deceived, or Dishonest.)

The Gravitational Metaphor should also let you refute the concept of someone who believes that the existence of God IS dependent upon miracles (or anything that violates our known understanding of the Laws of Physics. Science now quantifies those Laws, and that anything that supposedly violates those Laws is actually NOT a reflection of God. It will further reinforce the fact that their "miraculous" understanding of God came from someone else's misinterpretation, misinformation, or misrepresentation of those "miraculous" events.

That methodology requires a new technical innovation called a Ten Story Building and requires them to go to the top floor and leap off of the building towards the ground. If they survive, they will have proven that God exists because of miracles. If they don't they will have not only proven that the Laws of Physics are supreme, and you will no longer have to worry that their Fundamentalist beliefs will further harm others, or that their stupidity will continue as part of the human gene pool.

That Universality, Omnipotence, Eternal and scientific documentation of these Physical Laws IS the "Proof" that God exists.

The Ten Story Building technique is called a "Flying Leap of Faith"
